Beware of Gift Card Scams
Gift card email scams are flourishing. The attacker sends a forged email, typically from someone in authority (e.g. President, Provost) directing the recipient to not call the sender and instead buy gift cards. Variants include wire transfer and changing direct deposit information. The usual giveaway is that the sender’s name doesn’t match the sender’s email address. If you receive one of these emails, do not reply to it. Instead, contact the person who supposedly sent the email to check its legitimacy. If it turns out to be a scam, notify the IT Helpdesk immediately. For questions or comments, contact the Information Security Officer at 361.825.2124.

Never be limited by other people’s limited imaginations.
